

ABSTRACT

A system employs null angle measurements developed in response to the detection of radiation, such as jamming, along with the positions at which the null angles are measured, to determine the location of the radiation source through reverse triangulation.